Green Literature English 2091F (001) Fall 2013

Instructor: Joshua Schuster

Date/Time: Wednesday 6:00pm-9:00pm

Location: University Community Centre 67

Course Description

Ecological sustainability is a major concern today and it influences how we view nature as both precariously fragile and extremely powerful. But how did this view develop, and are there other ways of viewing the relation of nature to culture? Should we assume there is an irrevocable gap between the natural world and the world of artificial human construction, or is there a continuum as Donna Haraway suggests with her term "natureculture"? Furthermore, is "green" a normative political movement or a rejection of politics as usual? How has nature been represented in literary form in modern literature (focusing mostly on America)

Assignments:

Reading Journals: These will be collected at three times during the year. A reading journal is at least two pages of printed, double-spaced reflective writing. You can jot down thoughts on the readings, something green you saw or experienced, some issue that came up in class, a poem, whatever, just as long as it relates to the course (it must be in complete sentences, but it does not have to be in essay form).

Essays: Topics will be handed out in class. Late essays are not accepted. We will use OWL.

Final Exam: The format will be identifications, a few short definitions, and short essays that will require you to compare different authors on a given topic.

MLA Documentation: Undergraduate research papers written in Arts & Humanities follow the formatting procedures outlined by the Modern Languages Association. The complete guide to this format can be found in the latest edition of the MLA Handbook for Writers of Research Papers, 7th ed. (New York: The Modern Language Association of America, 2009). This guide can be found On Reserve in the D.B. Weldon Library, call no: LB2369.M57 2009. The Department of English also offers an overview of MLA documentation at: <http://uwo.ca/english/undergraduate/Student%20Information.html>.

Participation:

Your participation is central to this class and is a key component of your growth as a student. Participation includes: attending class, being involved in class discussion, participating in group work, and putting real energy into all assignments and readings. Also there will be some in-class writing assignments. Read the texts before the day they are discussed.

Attendance: Attendance is mandatory and obviously counts for your grade in participation. It is imperative to arrive to each class on time. No unexcused absences are permitted (I am not crazy and I do know that problems arise during the semester - but please supply a legitimate written excuse - see University policy on this). If you miss a certain number of courses, I will warn you, but already you risk getting a zero in participation and/or dropped from the course.

Accommodation

Students seeking academic accommodation on medical grounds for any missed tests, exams, participation components and/or assignments worth 10% or more of their final grade must apply to the Academic Counselling office of their home Faculty and provide documentation. Academic accommodation cannot be granted by the instructor or department. Documentation shall be submitted, as soon as possible, to the Office of the Dean of the student's Faculty of registration, together with a request for relief specifying the nature of the accommodation being requested. The UWO Policy on Accommodation for Medical Illness and further information regarding this policy can be found at http://uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic_policies/appeals/accommodation_medical.pdf.

Academic Offences

Scholastic offences are taken seriously and students are directed to read the appropriate policy, specifically, the definition of what constitutes a Scholastic Offence, at http://www.uwo.ca/univsec/pdf/academic_policies/appeals/scholastic_discipline_undergrad.pdf

Plagiarism:

Students must write their essays and assignments in their own words. Whenever students take an idea or passage from another author, they must acknowledge their debt both by using quotation marks where appropriate and by proper referencing such as footnotes or citations. Plagiarism is a major academic offence.

Plagiarism Checking:

All required papers may be subject to submission for textual similarity review to the commercial plagiarism detection software under license to the University for the detection of plagiarism. All papers submitted for such checking will be included as source documents in the reference database for the purpose of detecting plagiarism of papers subsequently submitted to the system. Use of the service is subject to the licensing agreement, currently between the University and Turnitin.
