

Ashgate Press, 2014.

. Eds. Green-Barteet, Sara K. Day, and Amy L. M

Peer-Reviewed Articles

“‘The Loophole of Retreat’: Narrative and Interstitial Spaces in Harriet Jacobs’s Incidents in the Life of a Slave Girl.” Central Review. 30.2 (Summer 2013): 53-72.

Book Chapters

"'I'm beginning to know who I am': Rebellious Subjectivities in YA Dystopian Fiction." Part of Female Rebellion: Essays on Adult Dystopian Fiction. Eds. Green-Barteet, Sara K. Day, and Amy L. Montz. New York: Ashgate, 2014.

"From 'New Woman' to 'Future Girl': The Roots and the Rise of the Female Protagonists in Contemporary YA Dystopias." Introduction. Co-written with Sara K. Day and Amy L. Montz. Part of Female Rebellion: Essays on Adult Dystopian Fiction. e

. " Globalizing the American Revolution. Eds. Maria O'Malley and Denys Van

"From the 'L chamber' to the Woodpile: Negotiating Space in Harriet E. Wilson's Our Nig." Canadian Literary Studies. 2017.

Under Review

"Raced Bodies, Erased Lives: Race in Young Adult Dystopian and Speculative Fiction." Co-edited collection. Co-editor Meghan Gilbert-Hickey.

In-Progress

"Creating, Negotiating, Transforming Space: Interstitial Spaces in Works by 19 manuscript.

th-Century American Women Writers." Book

"Laura Ingalls Wilder: Critical Perspectives." Co-edited collection of essays. Co-editor Anne Phillips.

"Girls, Schools, and Liminality: Schools in 19

"Docile Bodies, Racialized Bodies: Liberating the Black Body in Suzanne Collins's The Hunger Games." Children's