Personal Response Systems (PDS) are a type of technology that allows students to interact with course content in real-time. PDS can be used for a variety of purposes, including: providing immediate feedback, tracking student progress, and facilitating collaborative learning. PDS can also be used to create a more personalized learning experience for each student.

- PDS can be used to provide immediate feedback on student answers.
- PDS can be used to track student progress and identify areas where students are struggling.
