Students may request academic consideration in cases of extenuating circumstances, personal circumstances beyond the student's control that have a substantial but temporary impact on the student's ability to meet essential academic requirements.

which the student is registered.

2. Requests for academic consideration include the following components:

a. Self-attestation signed by the student;

c. Supporting documentation as relevant

Requests without supporting documentation are limited to one per term per course.

Documentation for medical illness, when required, includes the completion of a Western [^šµ vš D \] o Œ šqr](#) (where that is not possible, equivalent documentation, by a health care practitioner. Requests linked to examinations scheduled by the Office of the Registrar during official examination periods as well as practice laboratory and performance tests typically scheduled in the last week of term always require formal supporting documentation.
