Building Better (Communication) Bridges: Rhetoric and Professional Communication for Engineers

Fall 2022

Lecture Section 650 (online, asynchronous)

Instructor: Dr. J. Johnston

Email: jjohns6@uwo.ca

Office Hours: Wed. 9:30-11:30 (by appointment via Zoom, but you may of course email me at any time)

Course Description and Objectives

This course introduces students to rhetorical principles and the practices of written, oral, and visual communication in professional engineering contexts. Particular attention is paid to identifying and understanding audience, context and purpose; the grammar and effective style of Standard Written English; modes of persuasion; interpersonal communication; the negotiation of cultural difference; and effective scholarly research practices. Students will learn strategies for drafting and designing technical and academic documents and for approaching the editing process.
